Rocksolve is a geological data, technology and consulting company presently focussed on the oil and gas industry with a vision to explore opportunities in the mining and environmental sectors.

The company is developing cloud based apps and technologies for use by geologists in the oil and gas business. It also provides specialist geology consultancies and training programs. The company is based in Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

Value Proposition: Oil and gas companies need access to rock data. Existing tools and software are legacy binary format desktop application lacking integration potential. These solutions are expensive and designed primarily for major oil and gas "big budget" companies. Rocksolve suite of applications for Cloud-based (and mobile apps in some cases) geological data gathering, interpretation and integration.

Services include specialist geology consulting and training services. The aim is to deliver solutions across all pricing spectrum. Rocksolve seeks to improve on existing legacy software and solutions by applying newer technologies and platforms. A cloud based solution also provides a basis for applying Artificial Intelligence and Machine learning solutions.

The target markets are: Exploration, development and asset geologists and managers, HR managers, Academic leaders, Government Agencies, Independent consultants and student geologists.

£200,000 investment in return for ordinary shares. Minimum investment of £5000.
